DEMOCRATIC HOPES FOR NEXT CONGRESS

Making Strong Fight In West and Down In Maine

(Staff Correspondence)
Washington, Aug. 30.—Representative James T. Lloyd, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee, says his party will control the next House.

"If the election were to be held tomorrow it would increase the number of Democratic members of the House of Representatives by thirty-five and have a good working majority," he declares.

Mr. Lloyd has just returned from a trip through the west, during which he noted carefully the progress of the preliminaries of the campaign to elect a Democratic House. Mr. Lloyd left Washington confident that enough congressional districts would be changed to overcome the present Republican majority, but he says he found the outlook better than he had expected.

"West of the Allegheny Mountains," said Mr. Lloyd today, "the air is full of Democracy. When you come east of this natural division a Democrat is likely to experience a slight chill. Conditions all through the West are excellent from our point of view. We shall make Democratic gains in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Wisconsin, Montana, California, Iowa, Missouri and Nebraska. There are some other States in which we are working where changes in the representation are not improbable."

Lots of Literature.
After this week the Democratic congressional campaign for the Middle West and toward the Pacific slope will be directed from Chicago, where Chairman Lloyd will open headquarters in a few days. Representative Frank Clark, of Florida, will remain in charge of the Washington headquarters and have charge of the campaign in the East. This will also be the headquarters for the literary bureau, which is sending out great quantities of matter. While the great fight for Democratic gains will be made in the West, the East will not be neglected where there seems to be an opportunity to win. A campaign is being organized in three Maine districts, among them that formerly represented by Congressman Littlefield, where the committee thinks it has a chance for success. Little has been done in New York, where the work is largely conducted by local managers. The Democratic congressional districts are in New York city, where there is little need for the aid of the committee. The situation in New York is being closely observed, with the idea of "breaking it" if there appears to be a chance, through local complications, of making gains.

Watching New York.
Great interest is expressed in the outcome of the New York State convention to nominate a candidate for Governor. Democrats who come to Washington speculate upon the probability of the nomination of Governor Hughes and the attitude of Republican leaders should this result.

"Will they nominate Hughes and then defeat him?" asked Mr. Lloyd. Upon the action of the Republicans will largely depend the plans of the Democrats in New York. The selection of a New Yorker as Bryan's campaign manager has instilled new hope in them, and those who had given up on the State before Mr. Mack's selection now turn with hopeful approval to his record for success.

"Oh, no, we are not discussing that," said Representative Lloyd, when asked if the Democratic party had decided to join in campaign publicity.

There is no indication that either of the congressional committees will make its receipts and expenditures public. The size of the contributions up to this time would make them almost ashamed to do so. Neither one has enough money to make a good start.

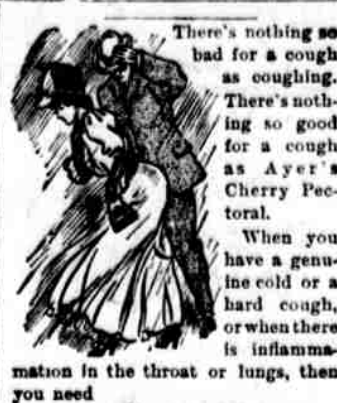

Campaign Funds.
It has been suggested that with the two committees working in close union it may be found after election, when the balance sheets are published, that there have been some entries on the books of the national committees like this:

Received from — congressional committee, $50,000.

This, it is said, while not the direction the transfer of the funds generally runs, is not impossible as a way of shielding timid contributors. "Indiana is undoubtedly the battleground of the campaign," said Mr. Lloyd, "and both parties are claiming it. A Republican from the inside told me on the way east that Taft would carry this State, but that Marshall would be elected Governor and Representative Watson defeated. You remember when Roosevelt became President everybody said, 'Oh, he's no politician.' And do you remember that he turned out the best politician in sight? Well, that's what Bryan is going to do. He has learned the game, and he will play it as well as we have ever seen it played."
